MUSINGS AND WATER seem to go together and there's no better way to get your head together than to sit on the banks of a quiet stream, or canal, and ponder the vagaries of life in the peace of a late afternoon. Doubt it? Ask Jason Rongione, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rongione, who's already getting experience in the fine art of ruminating at the age of three.

Parents want information

WEST PALM BEACH—A quest for information on the performance of students in public schools brought a group of Glades area parents and educators to the school board meeting here last Wednesday night and will take school officials to a meeting in the Glades Friday.

The parents said they represented themselves as individuals, the Belle Glade Lions Club and the Belle Glade Rotary Club. Three of the parents are also educators in West Area schools.

While some of the parents said they wanted to see stricter standards of education, most of them were concerned with getting accurate information on how students were performing and the effects of recent information on the results of testing.

Stories published recently, particularly some of those published in The Belle Glade Herald, have caused a stigma to be placed on students, according to Delores Johnson of 160 NW Seventh Ave. in South Bay, a parent who said she is a product of the West Area schools, now has children in the area schools, and who is an educator.

"Some of the recently published information," Mrs. Johnson said, "has been instrumental in gener-

SR80 projects to begin

BELLE GLADE—Commitments were made to take down Australian pine trees on SR80 between here and Six Mile Bend by State Secretary of Transportation Tom Webb and construction on the 13.8 mile section of relocated SR80 east of Hooker Highway will start next year, according to State Representative Tom Lewis.

Lewis said he met with Webb in Tallahassee last week and spoke to the head of the Department of Transportation on both subjects. Lewis said the pine trees between Hillsboro Canal and the highway will be removed or trimmed where necessary. "It is my understanding," Lewis said, "that trimming and removal will depend upon the condition, location, etc. of these trees to the road bed."

He said the DOT is expediting the job in order to accommodate everyone concerned, so the job can be completed prior to heavy traffic caused by the harvest season. "I understand this is only part of a project to remove trees alongside highways all over South Florida," Lewis said. "We've been fortunate so far, but it's only a matter of time and the odds catching up with us before someone is killed because of those trees."

Lewis said the four-lane relocated SR80 is expected to begin as early as May 1, 1979. Secretary Webb and a member of his staff advised me," Lewis said, "that right of way maps, acquisition and permitting requirements have been, or are near completion. I took it upon myself to establish as the highest priority the next section of construction to be the 13.8 miles of SR80."

"I feel this commitment was necessary to expedite construction and assist the DOT in their decisions to move along," Lewis said. "The pressures for the reconstruction of SR80 are just as great from the easterly half of the county as they are from the westerly half."

"I do maintain my commitment with sound logic and judgement," he said, "that the second most dangerous portion of SR80 is from Main Street in Belle Glade to 20 Mile Bend."

He said the DOT will keep him advised as to the progress of the two programs. "Sometimes the road to the top of the mountain is a long hard pull," he said, "when one must overcome so many obstacles, but with everyone's help, we are getting closer to the top of that mountain."

County officials to answer questions on schools Friday

BELLE GLADE—School officials will be at the Glades Central High main campus library at 4 p.m. Friday to answer questions raised last Wednesday by a group of Glades parents who appeared before the school board to ask for information and demand tougher standards.

School Superintendent Joseph Carroll, Superintendent-designate Thomas Mills and West Area Superintendent of Education H.W. "Dick" Berryman will be on hand to discuss educational programs and field questions raised by the parents and anyone else who wants to attend the meeting.

Dr. Carroll told the parents and teachers who attended the board meeting last week to detail specific information they want and he would attempt to provide the answers.

Carroll arranged the meeting after Glades Central teachers Sam Lovell said he had been denied information on the results of pupil progression testing performed earlier this year and had had to go to The Belle Glade Herald to get the statistics.

Berryman said Tuesday he, Carroll and Mills will be at Glades Central Friday to discuss test scores, the pupil progression program and other educational programs and will provide any information they have.

In response to Lovell's claim of being denied information which was later released to The Herald, Berryman said that when Lovell made the request, West Area Planner Dr. Walter Locke only had computer printouts on individual scores and hadn't compiled a summary, which had been done by the time information had been requested by The Herald.

Berryman and Locke before him, made it clear individual names are not public information and can't be released.

"I don't see the West Area sheltering public information," Berryman said Tuesday. "We never have and we never will." He said the information will be available Friday.

Since the meeting, Lovell and fellow teacher Bert Ward have been attempting to raise interest in the Friday meeting and encourage attendance, requesting support from various civic organizations and the Belle Glade City Commission.

The Commission unanimously endorsed a resolution Monday night requesting the school board to "present information relative to student performance levels to our community in a manner that is accurate and understandable in order that our citizens may better assess the results of the education system upon our children."

The resolution was only adopted, however, after a presentation by Lovell, another by Ward on behalf of the Belle Glade Lions Club and a long and somewhat heated debate between Lovell and Ward on one side and City commissioner William Greer on the other.

Lovell, who is also a member of the Lions Club but said he was speaking only for himself, told the commissioners the public school system in the Glades is one of the major reasons for a large number of people leaving Belle Glade.

"Many of my former students are no longer living in Belle Glade," Lovell said. He said housing is one problem but, "They will tell you they don't want to put their children in public schools and can't afford private schools." He estimated 1,000 families have left the area because of the school situation.

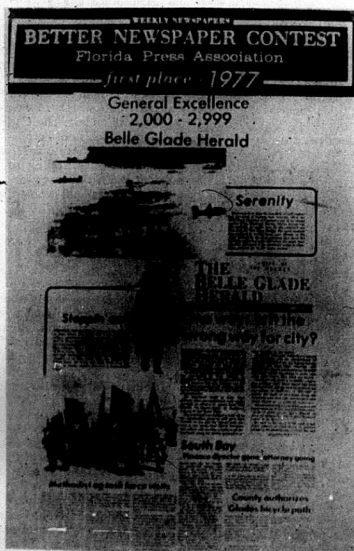

He noticed that 56 of 115 employees at Quaker Oats commute from the Palm Beaches and said the commissioners wouldn't have to go any further than the city Police Department to get further proof of the problem.

Lovell stressed his point by noting that out of a total of 867 new telephones installed in Belle Glade in 1972-73, 49 were for businesses while in 1976-77, 21 private phones were installed while 267 were installed for new businesses.

He said this is the first year there has been a positive identification of the Herald takes 5 awards in press contest

DAYTONA BEACH—In the annual awards ceremony for weekly newspapers held here over the weekend, the Belle Glade Herald walked off with two firsts, two seconds, and a third place.

The local newspaper won first place in its circulation category for general excellence, first for editorial page, second for feature picture and sports page, and third in typography.

Three of the awards were accepted by publisher Biff Lampton and the others by editor Dean Jones.

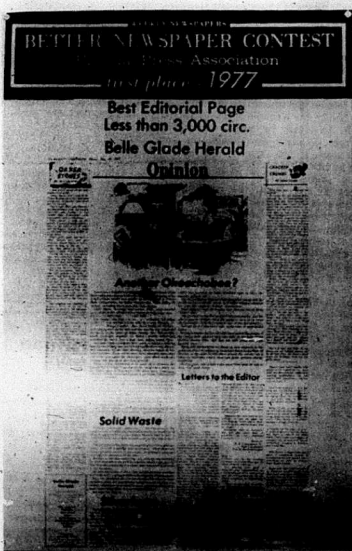

This was the greatest number of awards ever received in a single contest by The Belle Glade Herald. In all, ten categories were entered, and the paper placed in five.

The contest is sponsored each year by the Florida Press Association, of which the Herald is a member. Most weeklies in the state participate in the event and this year, there were over 1,200 entries by 77 newspapers.

"We were exceedingly pleased with the first place in general excellence," said Lampton. "This category combines all facets of the paper and is a commentary on the package as a whole."

The categories included under the general excellence award were general and department news, mechanical excellence, advertising enterprise, editorial page, general appearance, makeup and style, photography, promotion of community interest and others.

The Vero Beach Press-Journal won the "sweepstakes award" based on total awards given and earns the title the "Best Weekly Newspaper in Florida" for the upcoming year.

Saturday morning, Governor Reubin Askew "met the press" during the Florida Press Association's annual press convention. It appeared to this observer that he was in better humor than in any other interview I have ever watched.

He was questioned on a variety of issues, from Constitutional revision to the Sunshine law to if in fact he intends to seek another public office.

And he spoke at length on California's Proposition 13. As you know, Proposition 13 was a landslide victory for the proponents and is being hailed in the press and elsewhere as a "tax revolt."

I had to agree with Askew on many of the things he said about this issue. But I had to disagree with him on his central theme.

What I got from his discussion was that California's high ad valorem taxes and huge state surplus provided a ripe climate for Proposition 13 and that Florida's low taxes and small surplus does not.

I think he is entirely wrong.

A great part of Proposition 13's support came from those who wished to lower property taxes back to acceptable levels. But I think another great part came from those who are simply fed up with "too much government."

This is the message folks sent to Washington when they voted for George Wallace in 1968 and 1972. It was the stand Jimmy Carter took and I believe the reason he was elected, even though he has yet to fulfill his "promises."

In Florida, the climate has never been better for something akin to Proposition 13, not from a tax standpoint altogether, but from the standpoint of citizens who wish to reduce constant government interference in their personal lives.

Our form of government was based on the free enterprise of individual citizens who must assume the responsibility for themselves of regulating their own lives and destinies. This is the tradition in America.

But in the past several decades, this has been constantly challenged by our federal and state government and a new philosophy has emerged, that being that the nation's bounty must be shared by all, no matter how much or little the individual contributes.

The direct results we have seen from this system are proposals for a guaranteed annual income, Social Security "welfare," and other major and extremely costly government programs aimed at protecting those who can not protect themselves and providing for those who don't.

The problem is individual initiative. Some people are more motivated than others. They want to get ahead. But that motivation quickly dies when they realize that no matter how hard they work, they are held back by those who aren't as ambitious. In our case, it becomes heavy taxation to support legions who will not work.

The other day at Rotary Club, one member made the comment he felt like he was supporting not only his family, but a couple of others as well. In truth, he was entirely correct. While I don't have the statistics, if you "guesstimate" at the number of people employed by local, state, and federal government in any form, the number serving in the armed services, the number living off Social Security and the number receiving government welfare or other aid, it's easy to imagine how many people our Rotarian is supporting with his weekly withholding. And it's not only ripe in Florida, but ripe all across these United States.

Is the climate for Proposition 13 ripe in Florida? The answer is a resounding yes. And it's not only ripe in Florida, but ripe all across these United States.

Proposition 13 is not just a "tax revolt." It's a true revolt. One being carried out in the way our founding fathers provided for.

It's not a bloody revolt such as we often see in other countries. It's a revolt being carried on by the citizens of this country by the power they still control, their own votes.

Proposition 13 began when a couple of men touched a nerve in California.

It will be followed up by other men who, despite what some will tell them, are reading the public and correctly guessing its temper.

Personally, I hope it is the beginning of a new philosophy in government aimed once more at the individual and allowing him to openly work for his own benefit.

Schools and information

Friday will be the best opportunity parents of Glades students have had recently to get information, hopefully detailed and accurate, on how their children are being educated and what steps are being taken by schools to overcome problems from the past.

The meeting was arranged in the wake of a visit to the school board last Wednesday by a group of concerned parents and educators who said they wanted specific information on the progress and ability of students in Glades schools.

Bert Ward, a Glades Central High School teacher, said he felt that if the information were released on how many seniors were reading on a sixth or seventh grade level, the parents would demand a solution to the problems immediately.

Delores Johnson, a South Bay parent and teacher, noted that recent news stories have caused both anger and enthusiasm among parents, educators and, more importantly, the students themselves.

Ms. Johnson said, and we agree, that the recently intensified interest and parental involvement in schools in the West Area is directly attributable to news stories (she specifically named a story which ran April 7 in The Belle Glade Herald) released concerning the results of the statewide Functional Literacy Test and the Adult Performance Level Test.

There is no doubt the Palm Beach County School System has taken measurable strides in correcting the sorry state of affairs in which education in general, and the state isn't unique to the county, has found itself.

Neither is there any doubt among people who know anything about the state of the art that there is room for more improvement.

And finally, there is even less doubt that any real improvements are going to take the combined efforts of education administrators, classroom teachers, the community as a whole, parents and the students themselves.

The professional educators, in and out of the classrooms, are going to have to shoulder a heavy share of the burden towards reaching the standards everyone wants to see in our public schools.

But the most important share of responsibility will probably have to be borne by the parents of the students now enrolled in our schools.

The parents are going to have to become involved and we don't believe they'll mind the involvement as long as they have some idea about what they ought to be doing.

And that's where the meeting at Glades Central Friday is going to play an important role. The whole object of the meeting is to acquaint parents and concerned citizens with the pupil progression program, the results of recent testing of students all the way through the 11th grade and special programs either planned for the near future or already being implemented.

And that's why it's important for anyone interested in education in the Glades to be present for the meeting, if at all possible... and even more important for those interested in what their children will be receiving in the way of an education.

Some storm!

Things are rough all over when Tempest Storm, the well-known striptease queen, files for bankruptcy proceedings, saying she's in debt to the tune of $72,518 while she's been stripped to a total cash value of $25.

Tempest, who began hoofing the boards in 1952 at the age of 17, said she does have about $500 worth of stereos, televisions and g-strings but she didn't claim the Cadillac she drives to work in every day. Seems that's not hers.

The sad part of the story, though, is that topless, bottomless and g-g-g dancers have cut into stripping to the point the 43-year old hooper only made $23,000 last year.

And there are probably a lot of 43-year old women who could earn that much just to keep their clothes on.

Casinos? No!

There's been a lot of talk around the state lately about a petition being circulated to allow casino gambling in Dade and Broward Counties. The idea, not a very good one, is to ease the state tax bite on residents by letting tourists pay part of the tab through state takeoffs from the gambling tables.

Without getting into the morality of the question, casino gambling is about as practical a way of raising revenues as burning down your house for the insurance when the insurance policy is worth about a third of the property value.

It's a known fact that casinos are honey to the files of organized crime and there's one thing the people of Florida don't need, it's the cost of a new fly swatter... even if we could get an efficient one.

But almost as bad as that is the fact the petition would allow the casinos to operate only along the Gold Coast in Dade and Broward Counties and that's discriminatory against other parts of the state... or against Dade and Broward Counties.

This is an idea whose time hasn't come and, God and Florida's voters willing, won't, at least not in the near future.

CRACKER CRUMBS

BY DEAN JONES

Different people got different ways of attracting attention at conventions but leave it to the Crumb to come up with something else again.

Went up to Daytona last week for the annual Florida Publishers Association spring blast and convention to talk shop with other newspaper types from all over the state and listen to such interesting talks as the Constitutional Revision Amendments (which totally confused me on the merits alone) and the manufacturing technology of newspaper, something about which I previously knew nothing about. I now know next to nothing and I'm still wondering what this MTB is the guy was talking about.

Biff and I also managed to attract some attention by walking off with a handful of awards. Little bragging time here. Despite charges of having paid off the judges and fantastic luck, I still maintain we did it with skill and cunning.

Well, anyway, that's when Biff got his attention. I'd already managed to grab a share of the spotlight he still doesn't know anything about. I figured I'd let him read here about why so many people at the awards banquet seemed to already know something about me.

Now, I've seen some conventioners rely on stunts like blocking traffic in busy intersections, to attract attention and some others rely on gaudy costumes and parades.

I improvise. I'm what's usually known as one of your more addicted coffeeholic and the first thing I wanted, nay, craved, as soon as I walked into the lobby of the convention motel was a second cup.

Turns out the first people I see that I know were the boss lady and her husband, who guided me to the restaurant to get that second cup of brew and stop the shaking. I guess I ought to point out right now that all the waiting coffee because I make it a policy never to eat anything on an empty stomach.

That's where I saw my chance because when I was guided to a table by the window, I promptly sat down and promptly knocked over the table behind me. Lucky no one was sitting there.

Drew a nice lot of applause which I astutely ignored by burying my head in the newspaper but after a few calls for an encore, I did get back up and take a bow and announced that for my next act, I'd destroy the world.

That's when a crew of 13 waitresses, hostesses, busboys (much nicer than busboys), the maitre d', the hotel manager and a flying squad of police officers converged on my table and I beat a hasty retreat.

Didn't even get a chance for an encore except to kick over the coffee pot on the way out. If I can't have coffee, nobody gets coffee.

Turned out there was an urn in the meeting room anyway. Leroy Collins, one of the Constitution Revision speakers, told me later he and the other people having breakfast appreciated the early entertainment even if the motel employees didn't seem overjoyed at picking up all the splintered glass and crockery.

Later that night I also managed to attract the attention of a dog belonging to a friend of mine. Thought I'd made friends with the little feist and I guess I did because that night, while the rest of us were asleep, little Courtney found one of my brand new shoes and liked the odor so well he proceeded to chew it down.

Shame I didn't have the shoes on at the time. I could've let him gnaw on the toes as well as the heels. Might've even forced him.

And speaking of attracting attention, I can't very well leave out the Children of the True Light or whatever they're calling themselves these days.

I always have liked the design of the robes those good people wear. It's a shame they've never seen the inside of a washing machine and I'll have to admit I like their appearances better when they're downwind.

Ran into a handful of the Children at a rest stop on the way between Daytona and Jacksonville and they were taking in the collections from motorists who felt the urge to purge, if not donate to the robe-wearers.

One thing I discovered, though, Panhandling isn't panhandling when it's done in the name of religion.

Carter rapped

"The government didn't help cattlemen when prices were down, so we don't expect any meddling from them now that beef prices are up," says the president of Florida's largest farmer organization.

"We are urging President Carter not to reduce import quotas on beef," says Walter J. Kautz, president of Florida Farm Bureau Federation (FFBF). "It's been four years since cattlemen have made any money, and now that prices are up enough for them to pay off some of their loans, we hear cries from the Carter administration that prices are too high and they are going to reduce import quotas hoping to lower prices."

According to Kautz, allowing increased imports into the country would not significantly affect the cost of beef and would upset the market system.

"Administration economists admit that prices would be lowered by only two to five cents a pound," Kautz says. But the real impact, he says, would be seen in several years.

"More imports would discourage cattlemen from rebuilding their herds and we'd eventually have an even greater shortage of beef with higher prices," he says.

Kautz added that not all the beef price increases are going to farmers and ranchers.

A great deal of that money goes for processing, transportation and marketing, with about half the cost of bringing food to market being eaten up by labor costs," he says.

"In our marketplace, the consumer and farmer will come out ahead if we just let the supply-demand cycle work itself out," Kautz says.

Fluid milk and cream are the most consumed foods in the U.S.—291.2 pounds per capita.

Reid Moore addresses Rotarians

BELLE GLADE—Reid Moore, one of the Glades' six representatives in the Florida House, summed up the recent session of the legislature for the local Rotary Club Tuesday, saying the session was one where much was accomplished.

In terms of bills passed, Moore told the club ten percent more got through this year than last and some of them dealt with controversial areas.

The budget of $6.1 billion this year, he said, up from $5.7 billion last year but no new taxes or tax increases had to be enacted. Most of the increase goes for education with health and rehabilitation and transportation also taking sizable chunks of the pie.

Rotarian Gene Badger had asked Moore to talk specifically about issues that concern the Glades and among them were the status of greenbelt laws, backpumping, crew leader registration, the importation of Mexican vegetables, and the right-to-work law. On greenbelt, Moore said he felt in addition to the greenbelt for agriculture, there should also be a "greenbelt" for personal property, but nothing was done by the legislature in this area.

He said the backpumping issue did not come up this year, but noted he believed backpumping is vital for agriculture in this area.

The crew leader registration regulations will be coming up next year, said Moore, because there are powerful forces in the legislature moving to allow the organization of farm workers.

Moore said the legislature passed a regulation stating that imported vegetables must be labeled as such despite heavy lobbying by supermarkets and noted he is against the mandatory unionization repeal of right-to-work laws would imply.

On the recently adjourned special session, Moore said one of the most vital areas touched was in the new Workman's Comp bill. He said Badger had been in contact with him on this bill and that he could not go along with Badger in the Farm Bureau's complete proposal. Benefits were reduced, said Moore, attorney's fees changed and a provision made for review of Workman's Comp next year.

In a question and answer session, Moore addressed a number of other topics. He said the single largest fault he can find in the constitutional revision package is the number of positions that would be changed from appointed to elected.

He said the sovereign land bill will result in masses of litigation in the new labor department was the result of a compromise.

Christian Comments

Over the years I've found, other than Easter and Christmas, Mother and Father's Day are the most celebrated holidays of the year. I believe that all four of these holidays are synonymous in magnitude simply because they commemorate a time when we show our appreciation and respect to someone that has played a great influence on our lives, whether it be Christ, Mom or Dad, their example is our model.

The following children's letter will show us Dad's influence on son or daughter. These letters all show the strong influence that parents play in the development in the attitudes of their children.

I love my Daddy
because he helps me clean my room
He reads to me
He takes me to Burger King.

I love my father because he gets out to me; not because he doesn't love me, but because he wants me to grow up and to do good things for God.

I also love my father because he teaches me to do things that I would like to do one day.

I also love my father because when I get hurt he hurts more than I do.

I believe my daddy is the best daddy because he really cares for me. He works very hard every day so that we can be able to buy food. He helps the church in every way he can, he even helped me to see that I should turn my life over to Jesus. He helps me with my school work when I need it. He taught my brother and sisters and me, how to swim. I love my daddy and I am so thankful that he loves me too.

Your asking me why I love my dad? Well that's a silly question. I LOVE my dad because he's a special dad. He's not an ordinary father but he's a christian father.

and none can beat that.

When my father punishes he's doing it because he only loves me. My father let's me do alot of things and some he doesn't. Most of the time when he doesn't is because he's protecting me.

There's NOT another father in the world like him and there NEVER will be!!!!!!

I love my father very much and if you knew him you would also.

Potter has been an off and on resident of Pahokee for twenty years since moving here with his mother, Mrs. Helen B. Hillier. He has now made Pahokee his permanent residence with his wife, Rolanda and three year old daughter, Daviana.

Potter, after graduating from Pahokee Jr.-Sr. High School in 1963, attended University of Houston for one year, and PBIC for two years where he received his Associate in Business. After Potter attended college he spent four years in the Air Force.

FOUNDATION

Our nation is witnessing a building boom, such as has never before been seen. Every day new foundations are being dug and laid. Any builder will tell you that it takes a firm foundation to support today's skyscraper.

Our Lord, in His sermon on the mount, compared those that heed His word, to the wise man that built his house upon a rock, and those that did not heed His word to the foolish man that built his house upon sand and it was washed away.

Build your house upon a rock... Attend church regularly.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

FAFF Club

PAHOKEE—The Fun After Fifty-Five (FAFF) club held its monthly luncheon at the fellowship hall of the First Baptist Church Tuesday, June 8 with 34 in attendance.

A meal was served on tables decorated with glorious lilies and mums. Mrs. Elaine Storey gave an impressive devotional, reading the 34th Psalm from The Living Bible.

Club president Cleo Douthitt introduced program chairman Joe Thompson who explained the program of the day. Wiley Tillis then presented the speaker, Tom Hicks, who is a native Floridian and director of the division of services for the blind in South Florida.

Hicks' presentation was quite informative. He showed a film on how to react to the blind with many practical suggestions as to how one might be helpful in everyday situations.

He said his agency serves the blind, all ages, in the local Pahokee-Belle Glade area, giving medical attention to those up to the age of 21. He appealed for volunteer workers in this program.

Following the program, tokens of appreciation were given to Rev. and Mrs. Carl Storey in appreciation for their work with the FAFF club. The minister and his wife will be moving to Lakeland this summer.

When Mayor Tom Altman asked Lovell if the compensatory reading program was working by accelerating the students' ability to read, Lovell said it is but he feels that if the same testing were done in the fifth and sixth grades, the problems could be addressed in the seventh and eighth grades instead of by using extra funds in a special program.

Commissioner Grear said he disagreed with Lovell on several points, saying he believes the reason so many people are leaving Belle Glade is because of the lack of housing, not because of the public school system. He also offered other reasons for educational problems and the flight of white students to private schools.

"With the coming of integration," Grear said, "I would say Belle Glade was set back 18 years. Students caught up in this change could not help the situation."

"The School Board realizes the situation and tremendous strides have been taken," he said, "but you can't change things overnight."

When Lovell said he didn't want to get into a debate with Grear, the commissioner, husband of Dr. Effie C. Grear, Glades Central principal, replied, "Well, you're up here debating about education, especially after what you said before the school board about administrators."

When Bert Ward made his presentation on behalf of the Lions Club, he said there were a lot of parents of private school students who want to bring their children back to the public schools, if they could get an education.

Grear said part of the public schools' problems is that when the schools integrated in 1970, a number of programs were withdrawn from the schools. He also commented that, "A lot of whites don't want their kids in public schools because of the blacks there."

"Like the school board member (Dan Hendrix) said the other night," Ward retorted, after pointing out there were a number of white students attending Glades Central in 1971-72. "This isn't a black-white issue, this is a reading and writing issue."

"I don't think any of that's the problem," said Elmore Williams of 556 S.W. 13th St. "What we need are some damn teachers. If we had recruiters out looking for some good teachers, we wouldn't be having these problems. I'll see you Friday."

Ward noted in his presentation on behalf of the Lions that the important thing is to get precise and accurate information on the performance level of students to teachers and parents.

"I think if they (the parents) knew how many of their children were operating below their grade levels, they wouldn't stand for it," he said. "We've got a problem and I feel the only way to take care of it is the way we always do in the Glades; roll up our shirt-sleeves and go to work."

Ward said more precise information is needed on report cards, which confuse some parents, but noted information is also being finally found in other areas through the APL and functional literacy tests, "and I hold that man (pointing to Lovell) more responsible for those tests than any other single person in the state."

He recalled that it was Lovell who appeared before the Palm Beach County Legislative Delegation several years ago, requesting that students be tested before leaving high school to determine how well they had been educated.

Ward also noted that neither the functional literacy test nor the APL determine whether a graduating senior has been educated but only whether he will be able to survive in society or whether society will have to support him.

Mayor Altman said he believed the public should be concerned about whether the students are being educated.

When the resolution came up before the commission, Grear said he would have liked more time to read it and said some of the terminology bothered him. He specifically questioned whether the Lions Club had "petitioned" the school board.

Altman, who wrote the resolution with the help of City Clerk June Boglioli, said he'd used the term in the same vein as he felt Lovell and Ward were petitioning the commission for support.

When Grear said he wanted something more tangible in the resolution to indicate what the commission was asking, Altman and Ward both said they were asking the school board to provide factual information so parents can know how their children are doing in school.

Parents

ing some anger and enthusiasm among parents, teachers, and more especially, the students themselves. (The stories) made the students become more aware of where they are and where they are going and the West Area Administration should capitalize on the situation."

Mrs. Johnson said she believes the situation presents a challenge in the West Area to students, parents, and teachers. She said that while the pupil progression program has done some good, it is still too loose and still holds the students solely responsible and accountable.

"We have seniors who won't graduate," she said, "because they can't perform, even after 12 years of preparation. We need to think about remedial programs to help students and teachers, because they too need additional preparation. The programs should help the students rather than hold them accountable."

"I'm not pointing my finger at any one individual or at any one individual program," she said. "But what I am saying is that now is the time to look for new avenues which can assist in the development of more effective remedial programs which can assist children at a much earlier age than 15, 16 or 17 so that teaching programs, student progress and remedial programs can be monitored consistently to insure effectiveness."

Representing the Belle Glades Lions Club, Dr. Emil Wolf said the club has learned by several sources that many students at all grades have much lower tested grade levels than the class which they are attending.

"We are here not to criticize or condemn without accurate facts," Wolf said. "It is these facts that should be supplied the community. We feel that if the community was made aware of any disparities in our public schools regarding this matter, appropriate action could be taken by the board, administrators and the community."

"We also feel that if the apparent shroud of secrecy is removed concerning this matter," he said, "everyone would benefit. If a 12th grade student is reading at the seventh grade level, we want to know it."

Wolf was referring to a statement made by Glades Central teacher Sam Lovell that he had been denied information on the pupil progression test results by Dr. Walter Locke, a West Area planner.

When H.W. "Dick" Berryman said he'd been under the impression Lovell was asking for confidential information on individual scores, Lovell said he had been asking for a summary. Lovell said he had to get his information from The Belle Glade Herald.

Glades Central teacher Bert Ward said he believed that if the public knew how many high school seniors are reading on a fifth and sixth grade level, a solution would be quickly found.

County School Superintendent Joseph Carroll said that if Ward would write out the specific information he wants, "we'll see if it's available." Carroll said he would set up a public meeting for Friday at the Glades Central main library.

Representing the Belle Glades Rotary Club, Ernest McCroan said there has been a succession of "non-learning programs. The system of social promotion has taken its toll on the education system."

S.M. "Buddy" Pitts Jr. of 2562 SW 14th Ter. in Pahokee said he has his children enrolled in private school but he would like to put them back in public schools. "I'd like to use the money I'm spending on private schools where it would do more good," he said.

drix noted he was pleased to see the interest in a good school system and commented, "you realize you're paying double for private and public schools."

Board member Dr. Bernard Kimmel noted one problem is diet, saying that if children don't receive the proper diet in the first two years of life, they can't be taught effectively.

Leaving the meeting, Ward said he didn't want Carroll and Berryman to think he thought they were uncooperative. "We've got a problem and we've got to work together, and we eat pretty good out in Belle Glade, Dr. Kimmel."

Athletic director resigns

BELLE GLADE—Glades Central Athletic Director Johnny Davis announced last Thursday he was resigning his position, citing too much work to handle on a part time basis and adding, "I haven't been given the opportunity to be athletic director."

Davis said he believes the county school system should create a position for full-time athletic administrator. "I know my duties," he said, "but I haven't had a chance to perform."

"With girls sports coming in," he said, "this is no longer a part time or a ten months a year job. It's full time and 12 months a year. The pay is lousy. It gets $1,500 but it isn't worth it. It takes too much time."

"Like I said, the county should make it a full time position without classes to teach," he went on. "I have five classes and they tell me I have to attend every major sporting event. During the football season, I'm here at 8 a.m. and I don't leave until 11 or 12 (p.m.)."

Davis also said there will be an added burden of financing sports as of next year because of Title IX, the provision that for every boys sport, there must be an equal girls sport and the county won't be providing funds after this year.

"And it isn't just girls sports," he said. "The Athletic Department is going to have to pay for every sport that doesn't make a profit. Baseball doesn't make money. Volleyball doesn't make money. Wrestling doesn't make money. Tennis doesn't make money."

Davis said he will continue teaching and serving as assistant coach for the girls' basketball team. He took over the athletic director's responsibilities in 1975 after the job was vacated by Graham Frost.

Boat registration due

TALLAHASSEE—It's time to register your boat again. According to officials with the Department of Natural Resources, boaters can now purchase boat registrations for the 1978-79 period.

Harmon Shields, executive director of the department, explained all boats requiring registrations must be re-registered by July 1.

He said pleasure boat owners should register their boats at their local tax collector's office. Boat owners must show their prior registration certificate and proof of ownership, such as a title.

"A boat owner can save time and effort by renewing his registration by mail," Shields said. "Most larger counties in the state mail renewal forms to boat owners."

Commercial boat owners, he said, will also receive renewal applications by mail. But, Shields emphasized, they should register their boats with the Department of Natural Resources.

Any new commercial boat owner may obtain applications from any of the district offices of the Florida Marine Patrol or any Marine Patrol officer.

The district offices are: District 1, P.O. Box 4395, Panama City; District 2, P.O. Drawer "P", Carrabelle; District 3, County

Women's softball gets underway for summer

By Karen Hansford

BELLE GLADE—June's here - and so is women's softball.

The Glades Women's Softball League began swinging its bats on June 1 and there have been a lot of new faces on the scene this year, as well as a few upsets pulled in the games.

One of the new teams, Community Methodist Church (CUMC), surprised everyone by holding off a last inning rally by Wallis Pharmacy to defeat the defending champions 14-13.

Maria Crawford slammed a triple while Sharon Humphrey and Janie Priest went for doubles in the first inning as CUMC took a five-run lead. The team added two more in the top of the second before Wallis finally got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the inning when Frances McLeod and Ronnie Pike scored.

CUMC stretched the lead to 12 runs in the top of the third, with Kelly Teets knocking a three-run homer into right field. Two more came across in the fourth for a lop-sided score of 14-2, to make matters look dismal for the Wallis players.

Action became tighter as Wallis held CUMC to no score in the last three innings while rallying for five runs in the fourth and two in the sixth to make it 14-9. Frances McLeod and Susan Moss each hit doubles to help the offense.

Struggling to pull a last-minute triumph, the Wallis batters added four runs to edge within a run of tying the ball game with runners on first and second and two outs, but the hopes faded when left fielder Sharon Humphrey caught a long fly to end the game. The win was CUMC's second against no losses.

The girls had earlier beaten the Bank of Pahokee 18-3 in the first game of the season, played June 1. Wallis defeated Dixie Fried Chicken 17-3 that same evening.

Another new team, the First Baptist Church of Belle Glade, came out on top after a high-scoring five innings of battle with the Miami Herald.

Both teams took advantage of hits and errors as Miami Herald tallied six runs and First Baptist went for nine, one of them a double by Denise Morgan.

The second inning was scoreless, then First Baptist added six more runs to Miami Herald's one to lead 15-7. The Miami Herald offense got going in the fourth and brought in four runs while holding the opposition to no gain and then added another four in the top of the fifth, with Donna Garcia walloping a bases loaded triple into left field, tying the ball game at 15-15.

The First Baptist Church girls made short work of it in their turn at bat as Paula Anderson hit a single and advanced to second on an error, then went home with the winning run as Leslie O'Neal's hit went through the third baseman to make the final score 18-15.

In the second game of that evening, South Bay Growers allowed seven runs by Local 2152 in the first inning, then settled down to dispose of the team 25-8 in five innings of play.

Kim Miller was the leading hitter for South Bay Growers, with two home runs and a double. Mary Lou Stevens, Judy Abner and Glenda Norgwood also got doubles for the team.

The second game played last Thursday, after Wallis and CUMC, found the Bank of Pahokee struggling for a pitcher as the team gave up 26 walks in two innings to Dixie Fried Chicken.

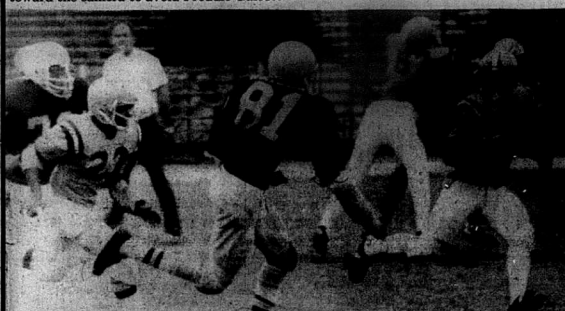

The game was finally called after the hour-and-half time limit when Dixie Fried had compiled 30 runs to Bank of Pahokee's nine. Dixie Fried still had two outs to go in the bottom of the second when the opposing team conceded.

This week's games show Bank of Pahokee vs. Wallis Pharmacy and CUMC vs. Dixie Fried Chicken tonight in Canal Point, while Tuesday's games will be played in Belle Glade with First Baptist Church vs. Local 2152 and Miami Herald vs. South Bay Growers.

BELLE GLADE—Defense carried the day two weeks ago when the Glades Central Raiders held their annual spring scrimmage, with the offensive players coming up on the short end of a 40-38 score.

Part of the reason was the aggressive line play by the defenders, as shown in a sequence of six photographs shot of a play when quarterback Terry Hammon, scrambling though he was, couldn't avoid a determined Chris Ellick storming into the backfield to bring him down for a 12-yard loss. The six shots unfolded in approximately three seconds, beginning a second or so after the ball was snapped and Ellick, a defensive end, is first shown charging from the near side as Hammon was already scrambling to avoid the clutches of tackle Freddie Garrett and nose guard Melvin Jones.

Hammon used shifty footwork to avoid the defenders long after many another quarterback would have been brought down but the outcome was never in doubt as the relentless linemen closed for the kill.

Father-son Tournney is set for Sunday

BELLE GLADE—The Belle Glade Bassmasters will hold a unique "Father-Son" bass fishing tournament on Father's Day, this Sunday.

The tournament is designed to stimulate fathers fishing with their sons or in the case of a Bassmaster member not having a son, to fish with a young person and show him the joys of bass fishing.

Each child fishing will receive a trophy and a gift, no matter how many or how few fish he catches.

The trophies and gifts were made possible by cash and gift donations from several different businesses, including Satellite Products, Original Equipment Parts, Pioneer Motors, Power Brake and Springs, Fawcett, Inc., Lake Hardware, Bob's Auto and Truck Parts, Watson Ford and May's Bait and Tackle.

The tournament will begin at daylight and last until noon. The children will receive credit for the fish they catch and fish caught by adults will not count.

In other fishing news, the Bassmasters and the Pahokee Tackle Testers held their annual Reggie Louis Memorial challenge tournament Sunday with the Bassmasters coming out front.

At the same time, the Bassmasters were holding their own tournament among their own members.

The tournament was a "boat average" in which all fish caught by the two different clubs were weighed and the poundage divided among the number of boats entered from each club.

Belle Glade's club won with a total of 149 pounds, nine ounces boated between nine boats and Pahokee had 54 pounds, 15 ounces boated between seven boats.

Dan May placed first with 26 pounds, three ounces followed by Darrell Mathis with 18-5; John Davis, 17-10; John Kelly, 15-10; and Jimmy McMillan, 12-12.

Davis caught the tournament's big fish, a lunker of seven pounds, 11 ounces.

The tournament began at daylight and was over at 1 p.m. and club members stressed that even though many people say the bass aren't biting well right now, the 16 boats delivered over 200 pounds of fish to the dock.

After the tournament, the clubs held a joint fish fry.
